Greetings from camp! Thank you for supporting the valuable experiences that happen at summer camp by registering your child at Kirchenwald. I know it can be a big step for both of you and we appreciate the trust you place in us. Through our training and safety policies, we take that responsibility seriously (and joyfully). At camp we work hard to help our campers develop their faith, to practice living in a community, to appreciate the natural world around them, to grow in confidence, and to lift each other up in love and support. We're so excited that your child will be a part of that work this summer. Please review this letter so that you and your child can be best prepared for a fun and meaningful time at camp. You are welcome to contact me at any time with questions or concerns. We look forward to seeing you soon!

Camp Director*

You will have the opportunity to meet the nurse, the cook, the director, counselors and many other staff on Sunday. Any lingering questions you may have can be answered at this time. You may also want to bring money for a group picture ($5) and some items from the camp store (also open on Saturday during pick up). Campers wishing to transport themselves to and from camp must obtain permission from the Camp Director to leave a vehicle on property. Please contact the camp if you will be arriving after 4:30. Pick up is on Saturday between 9:00 and 9:30am.

The Best Things to Say to Your Child

It can be hard for some children to leave the securities of home for the unknown at camp. Yet developing this independence is a crucial part of growing up. Saying to your child, "If you get upset, just call and we'll pick you up," may sound comforting, but could negatively impact the camp experience. Instead say, "Remember to try new things before you make up your mind about them. Your counselors can help you. We're proud of you and can't wait to hear all about your adventures on Saturday!" Here are some other things you can do to prevent homesickness:

- Include them in the process (choosing the camp program, picking out clothes, etc)
  - Visit camp for an Open House
  - Invite a friend or sibling to also attend camp
  - Talk with them about interests, hopes, concerns
  - Practice being away from home overnight (grandparents'/friend's house)
  - Promise to care for pets during the week
  - Avoid over-scheduling your child with too many summer programs
  - Pack comfort items (stuffed animals, blankets, etc)
  - Inform counselors of any recent issues that may be on the child's mind (illness/death, divorce, fights)
  - Avoid writing "we miss you" on letters, instead assure them of your love and support
- Learning to be independent can be a great source of self-esteem for children. It's natural for some feelings of homesickness or anxiety at first. This usually passes in the first few days. Our staff helps children by listening, acknowledging their feelings, offering support, and helping to set and meet short-term goals. By the time you receive a letter that says, "I'm homesick," most children will have forgotten they wrote it. The Camp Director will call if there are any concerns. As a parent, you may be able to give key advice to help your child. We will also contact you in the event of a medical concern. You can make the final decision about your child's continued participation in camp. We will work with you to give your child the best possible camping experience.
