Kirchenwald and Nawakwa - All should and can attend!

Jordan and David are the older brothers in a large family of less than modest means. They have attended camp together for several years. Their younger siblings also attend. Because of the family's financial circumstances, they would be unable to afford camp if not for the Camperships provided. Although not part of a church community outside of camp, the family truly value everything the kids experience at camp, especially the faith formation and Christian community. The kids look forward to returning to camp each summer and are able to do so thanks to generous supporters like you.

Similarly, Sam and Levi are older brothers with a younger sister. All three attend camp, and thoroughly enjoy it. They attend church, and are connected with a faith community beyond camp. Camp experiences reinforce and extend the faith nurturing and support the kids get in their congregation. Sam, Levi, and their sister receive Camperships which relieve financial burdens that would otherwise prevent them from attending camp. Their parents are truly thankful for the Camperships which allow their kids to come to camp.

Over the years, kids from both families have met one another at camp and friendships developed. Last summer, the oldest brothers from each family attended camp together. Each commented on how much they felt welcomed and that they appreciated how camp makes everyone feel special and included. Both hope to work as staff members when they are too old to be campers.

The moral of the story – Camp is for everyone! Your monetary and prayerful support helps include everyone at camp. All campers experience the same welcome and Christian community, even to the point of wanting to work at camp someday!
